

YOUTHFUL HUNTER OF ANACOSTIA LOSES TOES IN ACCIDENT

John Taylor's Foot Badly
Torn by Discharge of Shotgun.

WASHINGTON TIMES BUREAU,
ANACOSTIA, D. C., NOV. 15.
Reports from the Casualty Hospital this morning indicate that John Taylor, the sixteen-year-old Anacostian who was accidentally shot yesterday while gunning near Burk's Station, Va., will be confined to that institution for some time. The toes of his left foot were so badly torn by the grains of shot that the surgeons deemed it necessary to amputate all of them.

The youth's parents, who reside at Sixteenth and W streets, Anacostia, where John E. Taylor, the father, is a groceryman, had no information of the shooting until told by the police last evening. Mr. Taylor went to the hospital and found his son unconscious. He had been carried three miles after the accident to a physician, who had him placed on a train to Washington.

Young Taylor and Clarence Ohm, a resident of W street, Anacostia, went to visit the latter's cousin at Burk's station, where they were shot guns and went in search of rabbits yesterday. Taylor carried his gun in his right hand, with the muzzle pointing downward, and when it fell and struck a stone the weapon was discharged.

Anacostia Council, No. 16, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, learned at its meeting last night that the date of Thanksgiving services that it is proposed to hold in Wesley M. E. Chapel, in Washington, under the auspices of the order in the District, to which President Taft has been invited, will depend upon the wishes of the President. The council was informed that the services on either the Sunday evening preceding or following Thanksgiving Day, as the President may indicate. The council has submitted its invitation to the President.

Another subject receiving attention at the meeting last evening was that of the celebration of the sixteenth anniversary of the organization of the Anacostia Council, the membership of which now numbers 22. The date was set for the evening of November 23. It was decided to have a social evening for the five councils in the District to be held at the Anacostia Council, and to have a social evening for the five councils in the District to be held at the Anacostia Council, and to have a social evening for the five councils in the District to be held at the Anacostia Council.

At the annual business meeting of the Anacostia Baptist Church, the following officers were chosen: John T. Dent, Norval W. Greer and C. L. Cookman, deacons; T. J. Green, Claude Lucas, W. C. Cookman and Joseph Boswell, trustees; Leroy Fields, clerk; J. E. Gill, treasurer; Eugene Cookman, organist; Eugene Cookman, pianist; Samuel L. Dameron and J. Cranford, delegates to the executive board; Mrs. William Carter, Mrs. William Jones and Mrs. Ida Boswell, delegates to the Columbia Association.

Anacostia matrons, whose organization, the "Friendly League," will be active in social events this season, have chosen their officers for the year. They are: Mrs. Lewis J. Smith, president; Mrs. Charles R. Burr, vice president; Mrs. Charles Marshall, secretary; Mrs. Lawrence Green, treasurer. In addition to afternoon meetings for members, the league will hold a social evening for husbands. Mrs. Watson K. will have the December meeting in the evening in her residence, Nichols and Maple View avenues.

Well-filled bags to the number of 250, containing provisions and table delicacies, will be forwarded to the Eastern Star and Masonic Home, in Blair road northwest, as the result of the energetic efforts of the members of the Chapter, No. 2, Order of the Eastern Star, to secure donations for the institution. Mrs. Charles Smith, the chairman of the committee chosen by the Chapter to represent it on the board of managers of the home, prepared and sent out the bags, one to each member, with the assistance of others of the committee, and last evening many of the bags were brought to the Anacostia Masonic Hall, where the chapter held its regular meeting.

Policeman H. H. Tarnon, who was taken ill while on duty in Twining City on Monday, being sent to his home in the patrol wagon, was able to return to duty today.

The Willing Workers' Society of the Garden Memorial Presbyterian Church has arranged for an elaborate supper in the Masonic Hall tomorrow evening.

WOMEN TOLD HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL BY ONE WHO KNOWS

Madame de la Vie, Expert,
Explains Secrets to Columbia Audience.

Advocating soap and water, and condemning men with whiskers, Madame de la Vie, who admits that she is more than thirty-five, but who scarcely looks it, addressed a theater full of women yesterday afternoon at the Columbia, on the subject of "Beauty."

The several hundred women in her audience were admonished to go home and wash their faces with good soap and pure water, as first aid to obtaining a good complexion, which Madame de la Vie said was the basis of all feminine beauty.

"Washington women have cleaner faces than the women of New York, Philadelphia, or any other town I have visited in this lecture tour," said the madame, "but even at that, you might be improved. Not one woman in a thousand really knows how to wash her face, anyway. Do not give it a little dab with a damp wash cloth, but regular scrubbing, using plenty of soap and water." She then told them how to use cold cream, rouge, and other aids to beauty, but advised her hearers not to be too lavish in their use of coloring matter.

The Gotham Idea.

"Now take the New York women for instance," said the lecturer. "They paint themselves up as though for a moving picture show. They powder their skins until they are perfectly white, then they rouge their cheeks and their lips and their ear lobes, and then they start out for their Broadway promenades, looking more like trights than like beautiful women. While I advocate a little rouge for every woman, I do not advise plastering it on as a painter paints a house. The coloring is natural, and if he compliments her upon it, she should keep the secret of its origin."

She did not give any directions as to how this secret is to be kept from the husbands of the women who sat and listened to her words of wisdom, evidently believing each woman would handle the situation in her own peculiar and diplomatic fashion.

Her Stunning Gown.

Mme. de la Vie appeared on the stage in a stunning gown of royal blue and silver chiffon, veiling white satin, and elaborately trimmed with silver beads. At first she experienced considerable difficulty in keeping the rather delicate bodice from slipping from her shoulder, but she assured the women of her audience that it "could only slip just so far, and no farther," and telling them not to be alarmed. She told her hearers that she had "started out in life very homely," but that strict adherence to the laws of hygiene, combined with the use of several toilet articles which she is exploiting, had made of her what she appeared yesterday afternoon.

This accolade of beauty gave an interesting lecture of more than two hours' duration, the program opening with a musicale by local musicians. The lecture was given under the auspices of Laneburgh & Brother.

Dr. W. M. Davidson, superintendent of schools, will speak on "Modern Methods of Education as Applied to the Conservation of Childhood."

Assistance was given to 155 families last month by the Associated Charities, employment being found for twenty-six persons and $75 was spent in charity work. Receipts of $886 in the Penny Provident Fund during October, also are reported.

Fleet Congratulated For Splendid Showing

Secretary of the Navy Meyer has written a letter to Rear Admiral Hugo Osterhaus congratulating the officers and men of the Atlantic fleet upon the splendid showing made by them at the recent naval review in New York harbor. The letter of the Secretary is as follows:

"I wish to congratulate you and the officers and men under your command, on the recent successful mobilization and review at New York. The arrangements and management were perfect and carried out with precision; the handling of the vessels under difficult conditions was admirably done. The whole review was a complete success, and the President was particularly pleased with what he saw of the efficiency of the fleet."

"I shall be glad if you will extend my congratulations to the commanding officers and the officers and men of the new and untried vessels for the successful part which these vessels took in the review. Will you also extend my appreciation to the officers in charge of the patrol arrangements for the efficient way in which the course was kept clear."

Recital for Blind.

Miss Lillian Chenoweth, contralto, will give the recital for the blind at the Public Library tomorrow afternoon. She will be assisted by Donald H. Friess, piano; Miss Edna Bowers, violin, and Mrs. Dorothy Baxter, accompanist.

Would Paint Airship So It Cannot Be Seen

Aeronautical experts are working on a plan whereby an aeroplane can be painted in such color that it will make it impossible for a person to see it in the air. If the scheme is successful it will be one of the greatest strides in army aviation, according to military experts.

The idea is to produce a paint with such reflective powers as will make a machine appear just the same as the sky. While there has been nothing perfected along this line as yet, it is expected announcements of the invention of such a paint will be made this winter by scientific men who have been working on the project.

If success is accomplished, it would be possible for an aeroplane to fly over a camp of soldiers, drop explosives, and get away unharmed. It is pointed out, too, that on the ocean an aeroplane would be able to fly over a battleship, drop a powerful explosive, and either sink or put it out of commission.

Furthermore, it is pointed out that so long as a soldier can see his danger, he will fight with bravery. As proposed, the invention would be a wonderful thing in aviation, and coming on top of the prospect of using noiseless engines, the aeroplane would be the strongest factor in war.
